take an interest in the affairs of Oregon. FALATINE PLAINS, OREGON, ? November 4, 1844. * * The emigrants are now daily at farthest, and I expect to receive other letters and papers, which I am informed are on the way I have now an opportunity to write the Sandwich Islands.

Our country is most beautiful, fertile and well watered, with the most equable and pleavet before seen a population so industrious, sober and honest as this. I know many, very many young men, who were the veriest ragabonds in the States, who are here respectable and doing exceedingly well. Our crops the past year (1844) have been most bountiful, and we have not only a full supply of wheat for our consumption, but a large quantity for exportation. Large numbers of cattle are raised here, which are never fed or sheltered. Many men have from three to four hundred head of cattle. Sheep can be had here in any desirable number, as the H. B. Company have a large flock, and many private ndividuals have them.

Ere this reaches you, perhaps you will have learned that we have a regular government in most successful operation in Oregon. When first reached this region, about a year ago, I thought any attempt at organization might be premature. I had not, however, been here long, before it was conceived that a government of some kind was inevitable. It grew out of stern, invincible necessity. Our commercial and business transactions were considerable. Difficulties were daily occurring between individuals, in relation to their claims,' the estates of deceased persons were daily devoured, and heipless orphans plunder-

For the Journal. Smithville.

Old Swan quill! resume thy strain, Dismal croakings fill the air; Smithville's host has come again, For the dread unslought prepare: Deeply drink of Kent's black ink, Proudly soar beyond the reach Of twittering birds, that vainly think, That by nonsense, they can teach. In thy proul, empyrean height, Leave the groundlings out of sight.

"Nature! yes, 'tis thou, 'tis thou," Unto whom I'd meekly kneel: Pay to thee, the heart's deep vow, Which mere scribblers never feel. But thy broad domains are free, Undisturbed by critic's sneer: All thy songs are full of glee, Which all but the deaf can hear; All above us, around us, rise Rarest sights, for those with eyes.

For a holy charm pervades Mountain, plain, and sunny vale, Even in the deepest shades Breathes some floweret, lone and pale. Glorious sun, in splendor dressed, Lovely moon, with fainter rays. Radiant gems, on night's dark breast, What are poet's feeble lays? Though no human tongue should speak, Nature's self would silence break.

But ye "spirits" of the tongue, Elf" and "goblin," "sprite" and "fay," "Subtlest things," by fury flung At "Sol. Smith," "by night and day;" "Spirits of the wat'ry"-deep, "Sca-snake," " shark," " torpedo," " eel," When he goes a swimming," weep, You can never " make him feel."-Nature! thou the curse hast heard; Listen to a suppliant's word.

"Spirits of the earth combine;" Gentle ease, and hope, and love, Friendship, genius, valor, twine Into wreaths, which fortune wove : Bring together heaps of wealth, And a "Salamander" chest; Grant us a long life of health. After that, a place of rest, In some quiet churchyard, where Sorrowing friends may oft repair.

May our foes " repentance " find, For misdeeds in prose and rhyme; Quickly cleanse their wicked mind, Of its "venom," and its "slime."-Now I pray some gentle "sprite" May attend each poet true; And devils "gray, black, or white," March off, like " obedient " crew, To that " Limbo," o'er whose rule, Reigns supreme, some mighty Fool.

From the Charleston Courier, 25th inst. SUMMARY PROCESS. On the 9th inst., four negroes named aron, Bill, Lem, and Dolly, the property Thomas Hanrahan, of Greenville, Pin sundown, by three white men, William the false names of Martial, Henry, Seth. ind whatever, left the negroes in charge a broker in Charleston, and, too late for ith Smith on the 14th, in the Wilmingon steamboat. On the 21st, a letter was eceived by the Mayor from Hamburg, S. ., detailing the theft, and describing the egroes, whereupon, after prompt enquiry, communication was sent to North Caroma, and on the morning of the 24th inst. be owner, Mr. Thomas Hanrahan, with ould Hoyt, Esq., of N. C., arrived at harleston, and forthwith called upon the harge of Constable Levy, who arrested he negroes, and upon examination before he Mayor, corresponded fully with the previous description, were identified and proved to be the property of Mr. T. perb saddle. They claim him "as one of us." A political watchman, is it? No; but as one There's true kissing for you. who has "sprung from the people, and been the architect of his own fortunes. Mr. Clay receives the compliment with much grace; and, in his debonnaire manner, to put the saddle upon the right horse; and when mounted, or dismounted, (he) shall cherish a proud recollection of the friendly source whence it came."

The style of his letter is calculated, indeed, prefer a little daughter.' to please his friends. It also seems that the rider is ready again to vault into his saddle in another campaign, and he almost persuades us to say of him-

I saw young Harry, with his beaver on, His cuissers on his thighs, gallantly arm'd Rise from the ground, like feather'd Mercury, And vaulted with such ease into his seat, As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds, To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus,

And witch the world with noble horsemanship.

But Mr. Clay has yet one secret to find out -which is the "right horse" upon which he is about to place his new saddle. He has tried two or three campaigns, but has not been fortunate enough to saddle the right Surry for the field. This time twelve months, he was persuaded that he was on the right horse, and was marching directly and triumphantly to the White House. But, unluckily, Texas came in his way; and "Who is J. K. Polk" be killed, seriously bit Dr. Hogg and sevbeing better mounted, the latter outstripped eral other dogs." him at the last stretch and won the race. We are afraid that there is no steed in the whig stables which will bear him triumphantly to the prize. The rider is still perfectly willing -the saddle is elegant and in fine order; all that is now wanting, is to get the right horse, Standard, and republish it as a matter of conven and to have the opportunity of another start on lience for future reference. It is as correct a form the course. But, like Richard at the battle of Bosworth, we fear he will be compelled to cry

"A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse!"

Tit for Tat.-Some rough men need rough handling, and in no other way can you get a long with them. Such an one was old Ba rich money lender in S-. A strange who wished to hire some money, was once di rected to him with the caution, that he would find old B --- a rough piece, and if he would get on with him he must be sure to give him as good as he sent. ·Who nade you?' exclaimed old B____, i his sharpest, roughest voice. 'Moses,' said the man, nothing intimidated And who made you?' shouted the man to ol

'Aaron,' replied the money lerder, begin ning to feel that he had found his match. 'I thought you looked like that golden cal Aaron made in the wilderness,' retorted th money-borrower. 'Come in, come in,' cried the old usurer I'll let you have what you want.'

A RIOTOUS COW.

Yesterday morning a large cow, accompanied by her calf, was landed from one of the North River Boats at the foot of Varick street, and had scarcely touched the wharf, when she comme ced a furious charge up Canal street, clearing the street of all its pedestrians, who fled before her as fast as their legs could carry them. Unforunately, however, a member of the medical profession, Dr. Chapman, being of rather too plethoric a habit to take himsell away, 'in less than no time' was overtaken by the cow, and badly gored by her. Having thus treated the Doctor, the cow ounty, N. C., were stolen out of his field continued her career up Canal street, and into Centre Market, where her ire seemed Sharp Hester, John B. A little further on, a small bull dog attacked her, and the next moment he found himself stretched on the awning of a store door, where the cow had tossed him. She then ran up Anthony street, and was in the act of charging into an entry where some women were sitting, when she was suddenly brought to by a gallant tar, who seized her tail, lashed it round an layor, who issued a search warrant in awning post, and manfully held on until a l man came up with an axe, knocked her
